Sole Patrol

Dear Tim:

I'm a big fan of American Idol, and I was really pulling for Taylor Hicks to win it. I felt like he brought a lot of passion to his singing, and obviously I'm not the only one. Maybe that's what soul music does – it brings out that emotion and passion in people. If that's the case, why can't you find soul on the radio anymore? Don't people want some soul in their music? Doesn't Taylor's win show that there's a market for soul?

—Fan on Friar

Dear Fan:

We definitely think there's a market for sole – and we're it. That's why we've got sole fillets in our fresh seafood case every day – not to mention a wide variety of other succulent selections, including cod, talapia, sea bass, mussels, shrimp and salmon. It may not inspire songs or get a lot of airplay on the radio, but if you're a seafood lover, you'll want to join this sole patrol, too.

DEAR TIM

Dear Tim:

Any advice for a recent graduate?

—Grad on Greensboro

Dear Grad:

Certainly. A wise musician put it this way before he passed away: Enjoy every sandwich. Now that's good advice. Regardless of what you choose to do or pursue, enjoy every moment of it. Because there are only so many moments, and when they're gone they're gone. And if you decide to take the author's advice literally, step up to our meat counter as often as possible. There you'll find the farm-fresh ingredients to make every sandwich memorable.

Dear Tim:

It's less than two weeks before the Fourth of July. Any chance you'll be hurling a Popsicle my way during the parade?

—Heat Miser on Heathmoor

Dear Heat Miser:

I suppose there's a chance. It really just depends on whether you're in the proper holiday spirit. I'm always looking to drop a pop on folks who follow the holiday dress code. It helps to find a viewing spot near the corner of Northwest and Northham, too, because I don't like to wander too far from my traditional shady spot. And if you're bringing a cute kid to the parade, your chances improve dramatically. Whether you happen to score a parade Popsicle or not, be sure to come out for this incredible community event, celebrate our freedom and remember those who are fighting right now to preserve it.
